oyah's baby lie rips through the Rovers this week, as the guilt of her surrogacy pact with Eva causes her to finally explode – and tell Peter everything!

Since little Susie was born, Toyah has witnessed heartbroken Eva struggling to let go of her daughter, and the agony of that decision has magnified following the suicide of Susie's father Aidan. The loss that Eva feels is huge, and seeing her so distraught at her ex-fiancé's funeral is what forces Toyah to accept that she can't go on living a lie...

"The secrets just keep building, and after she realises how devastated Eva is, it all culminates with Toyah deciding to tell Peter the truth," shares actress Georgia Taylor, who plays her. "It's like tearing off a plaster, and she knows in that moment that it's the right thing to do. Toyah doesn't know what the fallout is going to be, but sadly it is catastrophic, and even worse than she imagined."

"There's tension as Toyah doesn't know what Eva will say"

In the lead-up to Toyah's confession, the pressure of her deceit is taking its toll as ructions at the Rovers threaten to reveal her secret. After Peter asks Simon to take Susie out for a stroll, Eva is furious to catch the teen and his pal Tyler smoking near the baby. With that, Eva snatches the buggy from Simon and wheels Susie back to the pub, where Toyah panics that she's about to blow their agreement.

"Eva goes ballistic, as she's naturally very protective of Susie," explains Georgia. "Peter defends Simon, so that puts him and Eva at loggerheads, and there's a moment of tension for Toyah where she doesn't know what Eva will say next. She manages to dissipate the drama, but the fact that it came so close to spilling out is terrifying for Toyah."

After disgruntled Simon takes the opportunity to stick it to Eva – and blasts her for the way she treated Aidan prior to his death – she is devastated. So when his funeral dawns the next day, Eva's emotions get the better of her as Johnny delivers his son's eulogy, where he notes what a great father Aidan would have made. It's too much for Eva to bear, and she flees the church in absolute agony.

Meanwhile, meddlesome Simon just can't let sleeping dogs lie as he rifles through Eva's handbag - and chances upon a photo of Susie that was taken at the hospital after she was born. Handing the snap to Peter, who is already growing suspicious of the amount of time that Eva spends with Susie, Simon sets the wheels in motion for his father's shocking discovery - as Toyah realises that her dream of being a mum is slipping away from her.

"Eva said that she was going to get rid of that photograph, so the fact that she hasn't is an obvious clue that she is not dealing with giving up her child," reckons Georgia. "And Toyah does genuinely care about Eva. She is a woman on the edge who is not dealing with her grief, and it's all these elements coming together that tips Toyah into revealing the truth."

Johnny's words strike a chord with Eva, who can't bear it any more

After Eva tells Toyah that she will move out of the pub so that Toyah, Peter and Susie can be a proper family, the landlady decides enough is enough. She gets Peter alone and gives him the news that she knows will turn his world upside down: Eva is Susie's biological mum, and their original surrogate Jacqui miscarried their baby. How on earth will he process the fact that Toyah has kept this all from him?

"It's horrendous, because this isn't just Toyah telling Peter that Susie isn't his child, as she's also failed to tell him that their baby died," grimaces Georgia. "It's a real double whammy, and the fact is that Peter has been denied the opportunity to grieve for his child. The betrayal, the anger, the hurt, the grief: it just explodes in him. He's in so much pain."

As Peter reels from Toyah's mammoth confession, it's with a heavy heart that she tells stunned Eva that Susie needs her biological mum. Is Eva set to be reunited with her little girl after all? And what does the future hold for Toyah and Peter now that he knows the truth?

Laura-Jayne Tyler

So many women!

To whom will Peter turn to help ease his pain?

In previous chats with Inside Soap, Georgia has shared her fears that there would be no going back for Toyah and Peter once the truth came out – and Corrie viewers know only too well how destructive Peter can be when the going gets tough. The recovering alcoholic came close to falling off the wagon at Christmas when he thought he'd killed Billy, so will the death of his child see him hit the bottle once again? Or will Peter find solace in the arms of one of his former flames?

The spark will always be there between him and Carla, but we're not ruling out Toyah's sister Leanne as the shoulder he'll cry on. The pair have been quite pally since Leanne moved into the Rovers, so could the ultimate Battersby-Barlow love triangle be imminent if Peter ditches Toyah for her sibling?

MEL'S MISERABLE - CAN JACK GET HER TO STAY IN WALFORD?

"Mel gives in to her doubts

about Hunter's

innocence..."

EASTENDERS | BBC1 THURSDAY

el decides that she's had enough of dealing with Phil and Sharon this week – and tells her lover Jack she's departing the Square!

Mel's week gets off to a miserable start when Jack tries to persuade her that her son, Hunter, is a pathological liar, and that she needs to wake up and smell the coffee! Desperate to only see the best in her boy, Mel refuses to listen to Jack's accusations, and tells him he's mistaken.

"There's still the matter of the missing £15,000 taken from the E20 safe," our Walford informant reminds us. "Jack is certain that Hunter is the guilty party – and having seen first-hand how deceitful the boy is capable of being, he tries to make Mel see sense.

"Deep down, Mel knows that Hunter is his father's son – and she soon gives in to her doubts about his innocence. But rather than confront Hunter directly, > she goes to Louise to find out why the pair split up. With Louise still smarting over the way Hunter treated her.

she's happy to spill the beans!"
When Mel finally backs

Hunter into a corner, he comes clean about the lies that he's told – but remains adamant that he isn't a thief.

"Hunter has told too many fibs – it's a case of the boy who cried wolf!" sighs our spy. "Can you blame his mum for not knowing whether to believe him or not? After she shows scepticism about his innocence, Hunter flies off the handle, and angrily stomps out to confront Louise about opening her big mouth.

"However, it still doesn't solve the mystery of where the money actually is – and this leaves Mel with a big problem," adds our sneak. "Phil gave her a deadline to find the missing cash. And now time's run out, he refuses to back down and demands Mel pay up!"

Without any means to give back the money herself, Mel decides to play Phil at his own game – and blackmails him! If he doesn't reconsider, then she'll tell Sharon how he tried to come on to her recently.

"Pah! Do you think Phil will meekly agree?" asks our source. "Of course not. He just decides to take the money out of Mel's wages for the next two years instead. However, after Sharon has a heart-to-heart with Louise, she tells Phil that she's worked out that Hunter was the thief, and she'll deal with the situation from here on out. How exactly does she plan on doing that?"

After spending the night with Jack, fuming Mel tells her lover that enough is enough, and she's going to make a fresh start elsewhere. Jack does his best to make her change her mind, but will she reconsider even if he manages to track down the stolen £15,000?

Tom Spilsbury

THE E20 SUSPECT

You'd have to be brave or foolish to steal money from Phil Mitchell – are any of these locals hiding a small fortune?

HUNTER

He swears blind he had nothing to do with the stolen cash – but we know he was in the club with his friends, and had ample opportunity to swipe the contents of the safe. And he is Steve Owen's son...

She's been quick to put the blame on Hunter – perhaps too quick! Could it be that Phil's daughter is deflecting attention away from herself – and just like her brother Ben, she's succeeded in ripping off her old man?

BILLY

He has suggested that the robbery could have been an inside job, so has Billy let slip more than he intended? It's deeply suspicious, but can we really believe that he has the intelligence to have pulled off the heist so well?

WOODY

Like Billy, Woody had the perfect chance to steal from his employers, given that he works at E20 and could easily know the combination to the safe. But whatever Woody's faults, is he really an out-and-out crook?

MO

Big Mo Harris definitely is an out-and-out crook, and Jack becomes convinced that she knows more than she's willing to share. She had opportunity and motive – but did she steal the money on her own, or was it a team effort?

here's an emotional heart-to-heart in store for Chas and Paddy this week, as she finally breaks the devastating news to him that their baby can't survive.

It's after Marlon and Paddy throw her a baby shower that distraught Chas finally finds the strength to tell Paddy the truth – that their unborn child has no kidneys and won't live. But as Paddy begs that they seek a second opinion, is he simply clutching at straws?

"Paddy just doesn't accept what Chas is saying," sighs Dominic Brunt, who plays him. "It's just too gutting for him to think that it's over. It's not because he doesn't believe Chas – he's just being an idiot male, thinking he can step in and make everything right..."

Chas has shouldered the bad news alone so far, as Paddy missed the all-important scan at which medics broke the news of their baby's condition, called bilateral renal agenesis. So her poor fiancé doesn't even have an inkling that anything could be wrong.

"Paddy's been so over the moon about the prospect of being a dad, because it's what he's always wanted – so he hasn't noticed anything is up with Chas," shares Dominic. "She's had bad morning sickness, so he's put her strange mood down to that. He just bats it off and reckons she's all right."

Despite what she's secretly going through, however, Chas agrees to let Paddy and his best mate Marlon organise a baby shower for her. But when she breaks down in the middle of it, there's no escaping the terrible task of telling Paddy everything...

"Marlon and Paddy have really been looking forward to this baby shower – Paddy even invites himself along to it, until Rhona insists that it's just for the girls," grins Dominic. "He's just so excited, throwing himself into everything, and steaming ahead with all their plans.

Paddy just doesn't accept what Chas is saying — it's gutting!"

"He's doing up the baby's room when Marlon sends Paddy upstairs to see Chas, because she's burst into tears at the shower. She manages to tell him what's happening, and it's just too big for Paddy to take on board. and he can't deal with it."

As Chas crumples into her fella's arms, Paddy is equally devastated. But can he find the strength to help Chas through her pain? Or will his insistence that there might yet still be a chance only result in prolonging the couple's anguish?

"This isn't going to be easy at all - of course it isn't," admits Dominic. "But because Paddy's a vet, and in the medical field, he has these doubts. wondering whether Chas might not have understood fully what the doctor was telling her - so he wants to hear the news again from a professional. It's such a harrowing situation to be in, and I hope we'll do the story justice..."

The couple have hard facts to face...

Bilateral renal agenesis is a medical condition where both foetal kidneys fail to develop, a rare genetic disorder in which the absence of kidneys causes a deficiency of amniotic fluid in a pregnant woman. Unfortunately, there is no treatment, and sadly, babies with bilateral renal agenesis either die before they are born, or very soon after birth.

"Some couples decide to take their baby to term in order to give the child a small moment of life," reveals Dominic, having researched the condition along with his co-star Lucy Pargeter, who plays Chas. "As Chas herself goes on to say, even if it's just an hour or a day or an afternoon, it's the child's lifetime. There's also the issue of organ donation to consider, as well.'

It's clear that Chas and Paddy have a harrowing journey ahead as they decide the next steps, and Dominic is keen to get this story right.

"Our scripts have been a tough read," admits the actor. "It's heartbreaking for Chas and Paddy - and for any parents going through a similar situation - but they'll want to get through the difficulties, to be positive for their baby, and for themselves.3

FOR BETHANY!

ape survivor Bethany is to suffer fresh hell, after Street newcomer Kayla ties her up and takes her hostage!

These shocking pictures of Sarah's daughter bound and gagged show her clearly terrified and fighting back tears, as reports suggest that her past will return to haunt her...

"It's heavily rumoured that Kayla is actually the daughter of Sgt Neil Clifton – the police officer who forced himself on Bethany when she was being groomed by Nathan reminds us. "When Kayla first came to waitress at Speed Daal, it was unclear whether she knew the connection between Bethany and Neil – but these snaps of her terrorising her father's victim leave little to the imagination."

Our spies on the location shoot reckon that Bethany will unwittingly serve herself to Kayla when she turns up on the mad girl's doorstep looking for Craig. As the girls face off, Bethany spies a photo of Neil in Kayla's possession, before it dawns on her who she really is.

"It remains to be seen whether kidnapping Bethany was Kayla's plan all along, but either way, things quickly spiral out of control," reports our mole. "It's fair to assume that Kayla wants revenge on Bethany for her dad being sent to prison – so how far will she go to avenge his name?"

It looks as though Craig will attempt to rescue Bethany, only for Kayla to threaten him with a crowbar! The tense scenes are expected to be on our screens later this summer.

Craig comes to the rescue – but will he put himself in danger too?

MEET CHARITY'S SECRET SON!

Can he forgive her for abandoning him?

mmerdale bosses have revealed that the reunion between Charity and her long-lost son Ryan won't be straightforward. The soap has signed up actor James Moore to play the role of the 27-year-old fella, who Charity thought had died at birth...

"We are absolutely delighted to welcome James to the show; an actor of real skill, talent and charisma," says the soap's acting series producer, Kate Brooks. "As to be expected with his Dingle heritage, Ryan is feisty, funny and reckless, and has an unquenchable zest for life. Ryan will not only turn Charity's life upside down, but also the wider Dingle clan, as his arrival throws a massive spanner in the works.

"As Ryan navigates his new-found family ties and connects with the mother he never knew he had, it unearths yet another layer to Charity," adds Kate. "His journey on the show is jam-packed with laughter, tears, unlikely friendships, and with the odd unexpected twist thrown in for good measure."

While Charity struggles to come to terms with abandoning her child all those years ago, she will learn that Ryan has ataxic cerebal palsy, and that he's not afraid to challenge misconceptions about his disability. After their first meeting on 5 June, he'll leave the village – but is expected to return next month.

f anyone had earned the chance to bring down hideous Phelan, it was Anna Windass. Corrie's big week saw his old nemesis make a shock return to the Street, having spent months in jail thanks to her wicked tormentor, before finally plunging a knife into his heart.

Debbie Rush couldn't be happier...

What a great twist, Debbie! How did it feel to triumph over Phelan?

It was great! I knew the story wasn't over after Anna went to prison. We couldn't just leave it there like that!

Did Anna plan to kill him?

No, she's not a murderer and I think her plan was always to get the police involved, but then of course it all went wrong. When she picked up the knife it was just a moment of pure, frenzied anger and vengeance. She was thrilled after she'd done it, because now she can finally sleep!

Was it hard keeping the secret?

Well, my Twitter bio still had Coronation Street at the top of it, and someone tweeted that I must be coming back. So I quickly took it down and stayed silent from then on!

Was it tricky getting you in and out of the studios unnoticed?

It was really funny actually, as my husband – I call him my chauffeur – drove me to and from the set, and I had to duck my head down in the car. I pretended to be rummaging for something, and the fans thought I was Kym Marsh, as they could only see the top of my head!

It's goodbye to Anna for now, but might we see her back one day? I don't know, to be honest. I left for a few different reasons, but I loved going back - so never say never!

THAT SINKING PHELAN!

Connor McIntyre misses him already...

Phelan really did have to die – and

THE TROUBLED FELLA DOES THE DIRTY ON JENNY...

here's shock passion for Johnny and Liz this week, as the grief-stricken Connor family patriarch endures the heartbreak of Aidan's funeral.

It's a tough week for the clan as they prepare to say their final goodbyes - and Johnny is consumed by fury as he struggles to deal with his emotions. For wife Jenny, who has been the focus of Johnny's anger, it's become impossible to reach out to him - and she's worried their marriage may never recover. But worse is to come when she has an accident that pushes Johnny to the limit...

"The Connor couple are unrecognisable as the happy pair they used to be a few weeks ago," says our Corrie insider. "Jenny is walking on eggshells, and all Johnny wants to do is scream at her. So when poor Jenny accidentally knocks a mug of coffee over the suit Johnny has picked out for Aidan to be laid to rest in, it's the final straw. He goes nuclear, and bans Jenny from coming to the chapel of rest with him. Instead, he goes with Liz."

THE FACTORY

Alya stuns Johnny by revealing that Aidan left the factory to her in his will – as he realises Carla and Jenny already knew.

The angry lady confronts the Connors on the cobbles, believing they've been scheming to prevent her from getting Aidan's bequest. That's certainly true of the women of the family, but Johnny had nothing to do with the cover-up – and when they explain their reasoning, he dismisses them. Instead of challenging the will by suggesting Aidan wasn't in his right mind when Aidan wasn't in his right mind when he made it, Johnny insists that his son's wishes must be respected.

Is Johnny doing the right thing by allowing Alya to claim her inheritance, or will letting go of the factory without a fight prove to be a colossal mistake?

At the funeral, Johnny delivers a powerful eulogy, telling the mourners how much he loved his son and speculating what a great dad Aidan would have been. His words are so poignant and truthful that Eva can't stand it – and ends up leaving in tears (see p4). For Johnny, having to cope with such raw emotion and seeing his son buried is overwhelming, so he asks Jenny to leave him by Aidan's graveside. However, instead of heading to the wake straight after, he decides to seek out Liz.

He bluntly tells her that he can't stand to be in the same room as his missus any more – and that he's falling for her instead. While Liz and Johnny get honest about their feelings for each other, Jenny is alone and heartbroken. Is this the end of their marriage?

The smitten couple are snogging within seconds, proving that the spark between them has most definitely not been extinguished by their long-distance relationship. However, Bernie begins to realise that she's not Serena's main focus any more...

"Serena's plan was always to tie up a few loose ends in England, before heading back to live and work with Bernie in Nairobi," our Holby source reminds us. "She stepped in to help the hospital after Hanssen took a leave of absence following the shooting – and now that Abigail has taken the reins as CEO, there is nothing stopping Serena from sticking to her original objective. Well, apart from the fact that her nephew Jason and his other half Greta are due to have a baby – and heavily rely on Serena, of course!"

Serena is soon torn between her commitment to Bernie and her other responsibilities as Greta arrives on the ward complaining of stomach pains. Bernie and Serena are in theatre together at the time, proving yet again that they really are a dream team. However, when Greta requires a consultation – and declines to be examined by Serena as she considers her to be family – reluctant Bernie has to abandon their procedure after Serena asks her to see to Greta.

Bernie's encounter with Greta leads her to realise that Serena's life should be with Jason and Greta, and that ultimately, she is going to lose Serena. But, after Serena insists that Bernie is her priority, Greta is suddenly rushed past them in a wheelchair suffering severe abdominal pain – as it transpires that Bernie misdiagnosed her! making phone calls to get them out of school. It doesn't take much to convince Sarah to go along with the plot to take the car, with her rebellion serving as punishment for Debbie letting her down so badly. But when the chase ends in Sarah having difficulty breathing, it's a warning sign for them all – and things get really serious when, following her police questioning, Sarah has to be rushed to hospital.

"It's obvious that Sarah is suffering, and it's terrifying for her when she's taken to A&E," shares our snitch. "Now is the time she really needs her mum – but instead Sarah is all alone as she hears some shocking news from the doctor."

Sarah has been dogged by ill health throughout her life, so this latest bombshell is set to devastate her family. Of course, Debbie will want to do all she can to help – but will she even be free to support her ailing daughter? Well, that all depends upon what Sarah has told the police...

Where's Amelia?

DAN APPEALS FOR NEWS ON HIS MISSING GIRL...

he search for missing Amelia intensifies this week, as the police encourage her concerned family to make a TV appeal for information.

Dan has been completely beside himself since his beloved little girl went AWOL, shortly after she found out that Daz is actually her dad, and not Dan. And as if it wasn't bad enough discovering he's not Amelia's biological father, Dan now has to contend with the fact that something awful may have happened to the child he's raised as his own.

While tensions are already running high within the family, Dan's frustration boils over when DS Benton tells them that there are no new leads on the youngster's whereabouts. Worse still, the detective goes on to admit that the situation may be more serious than they first thought – and Amelia could be in real danger.

The investigation later takes another turn when the cops haul Daz into the station for questioning! It turns out there's been a big development in the case, and Daz could hold some vital information that will help in their search. What do they think he knows?

As the week draws to a close, Dan, Daz and Kerry are united as they appear in front of the cameras, appealing to anyone who knows anything about Amelia to come forward. Will their desperate pleas uncover any new leads?

ileen's friends throw her a farewell party this week, as she makes up her mind to leave Coronation Street.

It's been a nightmare couple of months for Eileen, since she discovered the true extent of her serial-killer husband Pat Phelan's crimes, and came close to becoming one of his many victims. So when she's offered the chance of a fresh start, Eileen is sorely tempted – even if it means leaving Weatherfield altogether.

"It's Pat's daughter, Nicola, who offers Eileen the chance to rebuild her life," reveals our Corrie insider. "Nicola can't forgive Gary for stupidly bringing Phelan back into their lives and endangering everyone, so she confides in Eileen that she's planning to move away to Bristol. Understandably, Eileen is still in shock after her ordeal, and can't believe that it's over. Sensing her stepmum's pain, Nicola suggests that she comes with her – as getting away is just what she needs. But initially, Eileen isn't sure if it's the right thing to do..."

While Eileen ponders Nicola's offer, she meets with Fiz for a drink, and they have a heart-to-heart about their respective murderous husbands.

"If there's anyone who can empathise with how Eileen is feeling right now, it's Fiz," sighs our spy. "Her husband John Stape was almost as much of a lunatic as Phelan turned out to be – so she understands why Eileen feels so mixed up! Eileen is torn about leaving behind all her friends – but after draining a bottle of wine with Fiz, she comes to a decision. She's going to accept Nicola's proposal and move to Bristol!"

However, there are tensions between Nicola and Gary as she informs him of her plan. He's devastated after she tells him that she's moving south – and she's taking their little boy Zack with her.

Fiz & Ty reunited?

THEY'RE BROUGHT TOGETHER BY NAUGHTY HOPE...

t looks as if Fiz and Tyrone will give love another shot this week – as they present a united front in the face of Hope's bad behaviour.

Fiz can't believe it when she buys her daughter some expensive new trainers, but then gets a call from school to say that Hope's been flogging them! Alya is furious when Fiz downs tools to pick up Hope – and sacks her on the spot.

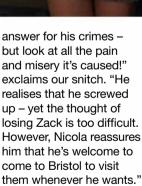

Jobless and alone, Fiz is distraught as she comes face to face with Hope, but there's more to worry about than Alya...

Fiz can't understand how her little girl could have got her hands on multiple pairs of sports shoes, until she calls in Tyrone - and they discover that as well as fleecing Fiz for trainers, Hope has manipulated Tyrone into buying some too! It's an ingenious moneymaking scheme, but it just goes to prove that there's a long road ahead before they can curb Hope's dark side. And so, when Tyrone fully supports her by helping to give the lass a stern talking-to, Fiz finds herself softening towards him.

Realising they have so much to fight for, Fiz tells Sean that she wants him to find somewhere else to live so that Ty can move back in. Will her dream of a reunited family come true?

Kate White

As Steve and Tim throw a farewell party at the cab office, Eileen tells Seb that he'll need somewhere else to live, as she's planning on renting out her house when she departs. But she relents after she realises that Seb has nowhere else to go, telling him he can stay at No 11 until she can find a full-time tenant.

However, is Eileen really leaving for good, or will she be back on the cobbles sooner than she thinks?

Adam's death has rocked the Donovan family to its very core, with Jesse convinced that his dad was the one responsible. While loyal Grace is steadfastly supporting Glenn's claims that he didn't do it, she is determined to find the real culprit – so what exactly is she planning to do when she catches them?

"This is Grace, so she's obviously going to do something pretty bad!" chuckles Tamara Wall, who plays her. "She's not been wicked for because she's with Glenn and she's under his thumb, so it'll be exciting to see what she does when she finally realises it all – which she will. Look out for bad Grace, because she's going to be back in a big way!"

As the family gears up to lay Adam to rest, distraught Jesse has dismissed his dad and sister, and forged ahead with the funeral arrangements without including them. Grace is desperate to make amends – especially after she discovers that Jesse's organisation skills leave a lot to be desired...

"The orders of service turn up, and they're all wrong!" wails Tamara. "Jesse hasn't given them the right details, so they have the picture of the wrong Adam Donovan. When we were filming the scene, I remember just falling about laughing, because the photo on the front of them looks like Harold Bishop from Neighbours! I was in absolute hysterics."

In a bid to show Jesse that Glenn wasn't the one who murdered Adam, Grace sets about finding the real killer. Her investigation leads her to Glenn's crony, Jay – but will he put Grace in the picture about her violent fiancé?

"Grace definitely has her suspicions that it could be something to do with Glenn," reckons Tamara. "But she's desperately looking for anything that could prove it wasn't him. At one point, Glenn plants the seed that it could be Jay, and as Grace doesn't have any other suspects, she thinks it must be him. She's under Glenn's spell, and I think it's going to take a lot to snap her out of it."

Adam's death came as a huge shock to viewers, who were stunned that Glenn would be cold-hearted enough to murder his own son. And Grace is under Glenn's spell — it'll take a lot to snap her out of it!"

asood concocts a scheme to get closer to a local businessman this week – by dating his daughter!

After hearing that successful entrepreneur Habib Hussein is giving a talk nearby, Masood suggests to business partner lan that they should go along and network. But when sneaky lan decides to ditch Masood and go to the event solo, Mas has to use underhand tactics to get one up on his rival...

"These two are acting like a pair of immature schoolboys!"

scolds our Walford insider.

"Mas is keen for them to team up to impress Habib, but lan being lan decides that he should go to the event alone. So to get his own back, Mas reports the chippy to environmental health, claiming there's an infestation of rats! And while lan is busy sorting out the mess, Mas sneaks off to meet Habib."

However, Masood's plan backfires when lan arrives at the event, and sends him back to the chip shop to clear up! Having missed his big chance to impress Habib, Mas realises he needs to change tack to get the businessman's attention.

So, having discovered that Habib has a daughter, Masood contacts her via a dating site and arranges to meet up for a date. After a pep talk from his uncle Arshad, Mas heads off to meet Amal – but his scheme doesn't go entirely to plan!

"Masood pulls out all the stops to impress her, hoping it will pave the way to a meeting with her wealthy father," explains our sneak. "So imagine his disappointment when he finds out she isn't Habib's daughter at all – he has the wrong girl! He's gone to all this effort for nothing, as Amal has no connection to Habib Hussein whatsoever. It's just a case of mistaken identity, but Masood thinks he's wasted his time. Now he stands no chance of making a business connection with Mr Hussein."

Masood feels dejected as he heads home from his disastrous meeting with Amal. So he's shocked when she turns up at the chippy the next day and suggests that she and Masood should go on a proper date!

Amal may not be who Mas thought she was, but she seems to be genuinely keen on getting to know him. Could Masood's mistake lead to an unexpected shot at romance?

KATHY'S A CATCH!

When will Masood ask her out?

Masood has been far too consumed with business ever since he returned to Walford, and he's barely had a sniff of romance. But could his perfect match be sitting right under his nose?

Viewers can't have failed to notice the obvious spark between him and Kathy, and she often takes Mas' side when he and lan are embroiled in one of their petty arguments. They seem to get on really well as friends, which is often the best foundation to a potential romance, and it's clear they share the same sense of humour.

If Masood could stop obsessing over his childish feud with Ian for long enough, perhaps he'd realise that Kathy is a great catch. And what better way to really wind up Ian than by dating his mother? Come on Mas – ask Kath out!

HARD HITTING

I just wanted to praise Hollyoaks for the storyline of domestic abuse featuring Misbah and her son Imran. I am a mother living in the same situation, and I have been for years. Unfortunately, I was told it was my own fault and it was down to my parenting. There is no support for parents like us. We don't talk about it – it's such a taboo. Hopefully awareness can be raised and we can get the support we need. Well done, Hollyoaks! Javne

And well done to you too, Jayne, for being brave enough to talk about your experiences.

DON'T KNOCK IT!

Ross is leaving Emmerdale but why is that a reason for some people to start knocking the show, saying it's failing because of 'all these people' leaving? Actors leave soaps regularly – sometimes they are axed, sometimes they quit. It's not always the best move, as many actors come to realise when they just end up doing reality shows and adverts! But it isn't an indication that there's anything wrong with the programme itself. It reflects > real life – circumstances change, people come and go, actors move on. So don't knock Emmerdale! Debbi, Willow, change your mind!

Derby You tell 'em, Debbi – village life will go on without Ross!

PHELAN'S LAST STAND Truly, totally and irredeemably evil,

Patrick James Phelan has proved to be a Corrie villain like no other. But as the gates of hell open to receive him, our readers are sad to see him go...

I'm really going to miss Phelan! Yes, he's a coldblooded killer, but he never bumped off anyone that we particularly cared about, did he? In fact, getting rid of boring old Michael Rodwell was practically a public service! I'd have liked him to stay a few more years yet, slowly whittling down the more boring end of the cast list!

Dave, Blackburn

This storyline has been totally unbelieveable and gone on far too long, but I have to say that actor Connor McIntyre has never been less than amazing. I'm really going to miss him.

Maggie

Connor McIntyre has rocked as Phelan! Who would have thought such a vile character would become the best thing in Corrie for years?

Coming out

Kim may be on the ropes at the moment – but as Tameka Empson reminds us, her alter ego is still a force to be reckoned with...

EASTENDERS | BBC1 MONDAY

Tot to boast, but I'm actually quite good at it..." laughs Tameka Empson, as we call her for a chat about another hellish week for her Walford alter ego Kim, and catch the star in the middle of wrapping birthday presents. "I have one of the sticky-tape dispensers you put on vour wrist - of course I have! I love arts and crafts, and I love a ribbon."

While Tameka's up to her eyes in gift wrap, Kim is still in the thick of her desperate search for husband Vincent and she has a terrible shock in store this week, when the police inform her they've found a body. But whatever lies ahead for Kim, don't make the mistake of assuming that she'll fall apart, insists Tameka...

How do you think Kim has coped since Vincent went missing?

She's being a detective, but she's also being a great wife – she's standing by Vincent. She knew that something was wrong, that they'd had their ups and downs, but they were in things together. So she's looking out for Vincent, and hasn't given up. She just wants to know what's going on.

How would Kim react if he returned?

I don't think she'd be best pleased – there's a lot of stress when someone disappears without a word. She wants to find him and tear him to pieces!

What's keeping her going in her bid to track down Vincent?

She can't understand him disappearing. The last time they spoke, he was going to tell these friends of his that he wasn't going to go with them - and now he's gone. So she's stressed about it, but she's determined as she knows something's not right – she just can't put her finger on what it is. Helping hand: Denise is there for Kim during this traumatic time

What advice would you give Kim? I'd tell her to cry it all out, get it all out of your system, and then make a plan. Do what you can, but also care for yourself because you're with child. She has

"Kim is stressed – she wants to track down Vincent and tear him to pieces!" to make sure that she doesn't neglect herself by looking for a man who has chosen, for whatever reason, to leave.

It was after Kim suffered a funny turn while packing up Vincent's stuff that Denise insisted she take a pregnancy test. The test was positive - meaning that abandoned Kim now faces life as a single parent to two children...

How does Kim feel about being pregnant?

It's a shock, innit! This is an extra motivation for finding Vincent another baby is what they both wanted. She'd like to tell Vincent that their family is expanding.

Do you think she could cope as a single mum?

I think it would be the making of her - you'd see the lioness in her. She's seen Denise do it, so thinks she can do it too. I reckon Denise will actually be impressed with how Kim deals with it! You won't see her giving up or needing a man. She's very resilient and the kind of person who'll find a way to make it work. She'll be lonely and angry, but she would never show that to her family.

What kind of big sister do you reckon Pearl would make?

I think she's going to be a bit difficult! Pearl is kind of a mini-Kim, which I adore. So I reckon that Pearl will be like, "Okay, what are you doing, trying to steal my thunder?". And Kim would have to be referee. Can you imagine if she were to have another girl? Three little Kims on the Square would be a lot of fun!

Having lost her affluent lifestyle, however, Kim is already having to make some huge compromises...

Yes, she wants that house back! But that's why she's working at the Minute Mart – if that's what she needs to do, then she'll do it. It's not a career move for her, she's just stepping up to the plate. Her man has gone and she really needs some money coming in, so she's doing this.

"People reckon Kim's a bit of a laugh — but there's also a sternness to her..."

Have you enjoyed Kim's scenes on the Minute Mart set?

[Laughs] Every time that tabard comes on! It's so fun in there, and I love working with Emma [Barton, who plays Honey]. She's hilarious, and it's just like acting with Diane [Parish, aka Denise], where we bounce off each other. It's as though we have our own mini-series – we should have our own theme tune. And I love that she's called Honey, because I can pop it in anywhere: "Okay Honey. See you later, Honey." It's very Kim, and very me!

Do you reckon that all of this adversity will change Kim?

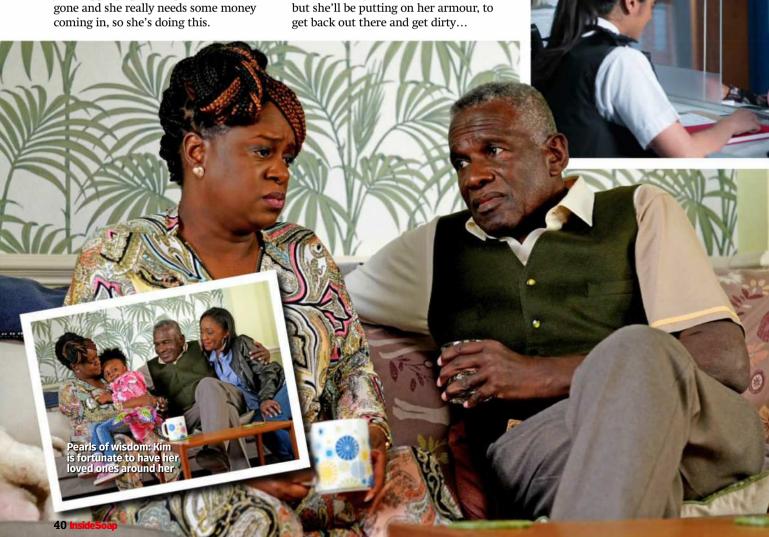

There will be a change in her, but she'll still want to keep up appearances. She'll be back in her high heels, and all the Kim staples. But I think that you'll see her being more cautious. People reckon that Kim's a bit of a laugh, though there's also a sternness to her that doesn't always come out because, for her, life is too short – let's have a good time! She's hit a wall, but she'll be putting on her armour, to get back out there and get dirty

Soon after Kim learns she's expecting, detectives reveal that they have an unidentified body matching Vincent's description. She's at the police station to report that Pearl's savings account has been emptied, believing it could be an important clue in tracking down Vincent – so, of course, the news that he may be dead comes as a major shock...

Has Kim considered that Vincent could in fact be dead?

told by police that a body's been found

I don't reckon she thinks he's dead. The longer that it goes on, the more worried she's been – but she's not started thinking the worst yet. She's done her homework with his finances and social media, though, and there's been no movement for weeks. So it doesn't look good.

How does Kim feel when the police tell her that they've found a body?

It's a massive blow because him being dead is the last thing on her mind. This really rocks her world because if he's dead, that's the end of the road. But she has to go and see if it's Vincent or not. You always hold out that hope that the person is well, and they've just gone away for whatever reason.

Does she have any suspicions of what Phil is up to – does he scare her?

She's not scared of Phil. I know some people are, but Kim is fearless! She's leaning on him for guidance, some kind of clue. She knows he knows something, that there's stuff he's not telling her. So we'll see a lot more of her trying to get things out of him – but she's not afraid of him, just of what he might tell her.

Could Kim ever consider turning to the dark side just to get by, do you think?

I don't think that's for her – she's not a criminal. She can understand why people might do it, and she might think about how Vincent would have done it, but she wouldn't. She'd chicken out because she has her child. She'll work long hours, ask her friends for more help. But she couldn't be a criminal.

What kind of reaction have you had from viewers so far?

People shout at me when I'm out and about shopping: "Bring Vincent back!" So I tell them, "You know what, you find him first, and let him know I need him. The bins need putting out and Pearl misses her Peppa Pig stories!". People are still looking out for Vincent, so I hope they feel Kim's anguish as she does her best to find him.

What would you like to happen for Kim in the future?

I'm looking forward to everyone seeing her mettle. Let's paint a picture for other single mothers out there. I think viewers want something positive for her, and you can feel the love for her. If she was downtrodden, it would change her character completely – she's supposed to be the life and soul. So I'd like to think she'll be an inspiration, that people can take note from her. That's what I'd like.

Tameka is missing her former Walford cast mate as much as Kim is missing her husband...

To, I purposely didn't read in the scripts about what was going on in the lead-up to Richard [Blackwood, aka Vincent] leaving," explains Tameka, when asked if she knew what Kim's hubby had in store.

"And I didn't want to watch it episode by episode when it was on screen – I wanted to watch the whole thing like an omnibus, to get the whole feeling," adds the star. "When I did sit down to watch it, I made sure I was in the house by myself, as I didn't want any interruptions – I'm a bit of a fan like that when watching the show!

"I thought I was ready for it, but it got me! I was like, 'Argh!'. It was tough to see Vincent in that situation..."

Tameka and her former cast mate Richard are the best of friends – and the actress admits she's still missing him on set. But she would like us to point out that he owes her a call!

"It's always sad when somebody leaves the show, especially when you work closely with them and you have that rapport," sighs Tameka. "I still have moments where I think, 'Aw, he's not here'. I don't mind admitting that I don't miss him blocking my camera views, though. I'd be like, 'Stand in your position!' [laughs]. But, especially for a few weeks after he left, I felt that void. When you feel it, though, it helps with your scenes. I put a lot of my own emotions when Richard left into Kim's reaction to Vincent disappearing.

"Me and Richard were supposed to be meeting up, actually, though he hasn't called me back. He's very bad at calling people back. Could you put that in your headline, please? Thank you!"

Following A been tasked w share of the d who plays be Connor — a nothing "Th of my exp the to I Johnny tries to find the strength to deliver Aidan's eulogy

42 InsideSoap

Following Aidan's death, the actor who's been tasked with shouldering the lion's share of the drama is Richard Hawley, who plays bereaved father Johnny Connor – and, for Richard, it's been nothing less than a total honour...

"This is the biggest storyline of my life, professionally," explains the star, who joined the show in 2015. "I only came to Coronation Street thinking

I would have a few pints and sort out strikes down the factory! It's been an immense privilege to be part of this storyline. I'm very proud of it. The whole team is. Everybody went above and beyond, because it's personal to so many people."

From the moment Johnny walked, shell-shocked, out of Aidan's bathroom, Richard's blown us all away with his tour-de-force performance; capturing so well the bewilderment, horror and fury that characterise grief. And the response from the audience has been overwhelming.

"It's been off the scale, and that's shocked me," admits 62-year-old Richard. "I was out the other night and a lot of men – big, tough, strong men – came up to me saying that I had them in tears watching the programme. We knew it was going to have a strong, positive impact on the audience, but it's also proved incredibly moving to me personally."

This week, Aidan's funeral proves a testing time for the Connor family. Called upon to deliver the eulogy, Johnny has to find incredible inner strength, and the day turns out to be an epiphany for the grieving father.

"He suddenly realises just how badly he had interpreted their whole relationship – the signs that had been missed from when Aidan was a kid," shares Richard. "With a little push and a shove at certain key moments, it could have all been different – and now he can see the truth, he wishes he could have done things better. That's a huge revelation to him and, I hope, to the audience as well."

could have done things better... It would have been hard for any actor to play such emotional moments, doing what we can to help others spot the but Richard welcomed the challenge.

"The funeral scenes were amazing to film," he explains. "What I love about this storyline is that it's a human, domestic drama. We're not relying on big stunts - it's real people's lives, and that's what soap can do incredibly well. There's some amazing writing in these scenes - and again, there are strong statements about the signs Johnny and his family missed."

> As Johnny's awful ordeal continues, Richard hopes that the legacy of the story will be felt for many years to come.

> "This is precious work," he says. "We're trying to honour people who have suffered a bereavement in these terrible circumstances, and warning signs. Coronation Street is founded on a strong element of activism, and it's an honour to keep that ambition alive."

two women?

Richard has his say on Johnny's love life...

Johnny's kiss with Liz this week is a shocking moment (see p16), but why has he found comfort in Liz and not Jenny?

"Liz has always been someone Johnny can talk to," explains Richard. "He can express himself with her. Sometimes all the currents come together, and they find a sense of warmth, intimacy and a gentle nurturing in a way that his heart needs."

There's no doubt Jenny will be devastated when she finds out - however, is Johnny making a mistake in thinking Liz is the answer to his problems?

"Tears can heal the heart's pain, but I don't think his feelings for Liz are real," muses Richard. "It's just at this moment, and it's his heart grieving. This whole plot is a story of men's difficulty in expressing their feelings. It's a classic case of lashing out at the ones who are closest to you."

hen Dan found out that he wasn't Amelia's biological father, his whole world crumbled – but that has paled into insignificance now that the girl has gone missing without a trace. Tensions between Dan and his brother Daz – who has just found out that he is Amelia's dad – are at an all-time high, and their joint concern for Amelia's wellbeing has done nothing to bring them together.

bring them together.

The warring siblings are forced to put on a united front this week as they make a television appeal for information about the missing girl.

But all is far from forgiven, as star Liam Fox – who plays Dan – tells us...

"I haven't got a brother in real life – but if I did and this happened, I'd probably kill him!" chuckles the actor, as he reflects on the terrible situation Dan is in right now. "It wouldn't bear thinking about – it's just the lowest of the low, isn't it? Dan and Daz have always had a very up and down relationship, so it's really no surprise that Daz is capable of doing something as awful as this. As far as Dan is concerned, Daz coming back into his life has ruined everything!"

So far, the cops haven't uncovered anything to give Dan hope that he might see Amelia again. So when they have a breakthrough this week and find some CCTV footage of the little girl alive and well, Dan finally feels that they're one step closer to finding her.

"This is the first time he thinks that somebody has got her," reveals Liam. "The fact that she's been seen walking about, and she's there with somebody on the CCTV, that's when the hope kicks in. Dan just wants her back as soon as possible, and the whole family is very hopeful at this point."

While relations between the Spencer brothers are strained, to say the least, Dan's lucky to have his girlfriend Kerry by his side – and her support during this difficult time has been unwavering.

"It has put a strain on their relationship, as any situation like this would," admits Liam. "But Dan and Kerry are pretty strong at the minute, and I think they're dealing with things incredibly well. Kerry's been really, really supportive of Dan – if he needs to be put straight on something when he's out of order, then she'll tell him! So while there's a strain, it's not a massive crack. They're pretty solid right now."

As the family unites to speak to the press, they're hoping against hope that someone will have the information they need to bring Amelia home safely. But Liam informs us that Dan struggles to hold things together during the appeal.

"He tries to be as strong as possible," shares the star. "In these circumstances you expect the parents to be an utter cries – but

mess and crying their eyes out, but in reality when I've watched these things you don't get what you expect. That's how I'm playing it. Dan's certainly emotional, and he almost cries at the end – but he's trying not to crack."

While Dan's going through hell right now, Liam says that switching off from such an intense plot at the end of each day's filming can be tough.

"If you've had quite a heavy, emotional day, then sometimes you do feel a little bit negative and a bit low on the drive home," admits the dad-of-two. "But you just put on some good music, and by the time you get back, you're fine. It's all in a day's work."

Sarah Ellis

What's Daz hiding?

The Spencers are desperate for any lead on Amelia's whereabouts – but could Daz know more than he's letting on? Dan is beginning to grow suspicious of his brother's behaviour, and his concerns are fuelled further when the cops haul Daz into the station for questioning...

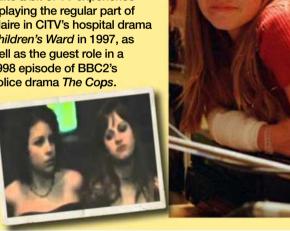

"Dan does suspect something could be going on with Daz," reveals Liam. "There are some inklings about a phone and some messages, but that's as far as it's got at this point. Dan wouldn't want to think that it's possible - for Daz to be Amelia's father is bad enough, but to think that he could have maybe kidnapped her or something would just be mad. Dan can't quite put his finger on it, but he is definitely suspicious...

YOUR INSIDES OF BRIEFING ON THE WOMAN BEHIND CORRIE'S SARAH...

Tina Michelle O'Brien was born on 7 August 1983 in Rusholme, Manchester. Before making her way to the cobbles, Tina had racked up quite a bit of TV experience – playing the regular part of Claire in CITV's hospital drama Children's Ward in 1997, as well as the guest role in a 1998 episode of BBC2's police drama The Cops.

Tina took over the role of Sarah-Louise Platt in October 1999. Tina was actually age 16 at the time - four years older than the character she was playing! Within a year of her debut, Tina was awarded one of Coronation Street's most groundbreaking storylines ever, as 13-yearold Sarah-Lou gave birth to daughter Bethany in June 2000. Mum and daughter were seen to leave Weatherfield in 2007 for a new life in Milan, but both returned to the cobbles in 2015 - where they've remained ever since!

After her initial eight-year stint in Corrie, Tina moved on to a variety of other roles - most notably that of schoolgirl Bex Fisher in the sixth series of BBC school drama Waterloo Road, despite the fact that Tina was 27 at the time! According to Tina, she's always looked a lot younger than she really is, admitting, "I was once mistaken for a 13-year-old at the ripe old age of 21 in America!" Don't It's quite the change of pace for the usually calm and collected lawyer. We're more used to seeing him as the schemer with a twisted plot, but Sami's plan has hit James where it hurts – by making him think he's just as violent as his dad, Mac!

"That's shaken him to the core, the idea that he might have that within him," admits Greg. "He grew up being physically assaulted by his father, and it's very important to him that he is not like that. So the revelation that he could be capable of that kind of thing is shocking, and puts him into a real tailspin."

Sami has been using Kyle in order to get under James' skin – but the last thing he expected was for Kyle and James to fall for each other for real! Kyle is already having second thoughts about framing James for his murder, which Sami plans to fake. However, things take a dramatic turn this week when Kyle jumps to the conclusion that James is cheating on him with Harry.

The BUZZ about Bea!

New Neighbours star Bonnie Anderson chats to Inside Soap...

aking the switch from singing to acting isn't always easy – but Aussie star Bonnie Anderson is doing a sterling job! She recently debuted on our screens as Elly's half-sister Bea in Neighbours, and she tells us she's having a whale of a time on the show...

Hi Bonnie! How have viewers reacted to Beatrix so far?

Everyone's been pretty positive. It's interesting hearing what people think of Beatrix, as she's coming across as very guarded, and quite bitchy. But that's because things have been tough for her. She's been homeless for five years, and she's always felt like an outsider. She has so much envy towards her sister Elly.

And she doesn't know she's being played by evil Finn!

I know, it's so sad – poor Beatrix! She loves 'Patrick' more than anything in the world, and she's only in Erinsborough because he convinced her that being a part of her family's life is important.

Would you like her to rebuild her relationship with Elly?

Absolutely. A common enemy brings people closer, so I think there's potential! They're sisters, and they do love each other. And a lot of what's happened between Bea and Elly will start making sense when you meet their mum, Liz.

What's it like coming into Neighbours and being part of the Kennedys?

It's just so cool! To be playing Susan Kennedy's niece is pretty amazing. The cast is great to work with, everyone has been so supportive and helped me out. I've learned a lot since I started on the show.

You're well known in Australia as a singer (Bonnie won Australia's Got Talent when she was just 12). What made you try acting?

I love a challenge! I'm still writing music, though, and I'll be releasing some more stuff at the end of the year. I feel so lucky that I get to do singing and acting at the same time.

CASUALTY | BBC1 SATURDAY

"Jacob likes a woman who can challenge him – Sam ticks all the boxes!"

he medics of Holby City's ED often spend more time playing doctors and nurses with each other than they do tending to the patients – so it's no surprise that nurse Jacob and paramedic Sam end up rolling around on the floor of the ambulance station this week! Could this be the start of a beautiful romance between the pair? We caught up with Casualty star Charles Venn, who plays Jacob, to find out if love is set to blossom for his alter ego...

So spill... what does Jacob really think of Sam?

Jacob's first impression of Sam is that she's somebody who's strong, confident, and very self-assured. Jacob likes women who can challenge him, either physically or intellectually, and Sam definitely ticks those boxes! Jacob likes the cut of her jib – there's an unexpected spark between them.

CHARLES VENN
RECKONS THAT
HAS FINALLY MET
HIS MATCH...

Sam's been helping out Jacob's son, Blake, too. Does Jacob approve?

Jacob's still finding his way with fatherhood – he's got 17 years to make up for. So when Sam offers to help, he appreciates it. If somebody can have an influence on Blake and inspire him, Jacob's going to support that. And of course, a bi-product is that Sam and Jacob get to spend more time together...

They go on a date of sorts this week. How does that come about?

They've had a very long shift, and Sam is thanking Jacob for looking out for her. She invites him out for breakfast, and yeah,

I guess it's a bit of a date. She has a twinkle in her eye, and that's when it becomes clear that she has some feelings for Jacob.

And they end up in a boxing match?

Ha ha! Well Sam reckons she could take Jacob on – Jacob thinks that's unlikely, as he's bigger, faster and stronger – but he just goes for it. He's a bit blasé about things, he sees it as a fun form of courtship! So they have a little sparring session, but it's soon apparent that Sam is very competitive...

That's a bit of an understatement – she knocks him out!

It's just a slip! Sam is a clever lady who uses her attributes to the fullest, and basically forces Jacob into submission – then effectively knocks him out! But he doesn't hold it against her, even though she goads him about it afterwards.

The big breakfast: But it's more than just the bacon and eggs that are sizzling

They also share a pretty steamy kiss...

Jacob definitely appreciates that kiss! Sadly that's the moment he passes out, though – maybe his blood pressure just starts to rise at that point!

Do you think Jacob and Sam can make a go of things? They do have an awful lot of exes in the ED between them...

Jacob wants to make this work as much as Sam does. But the situation does get quite challenging. Jacob doesn't tell Elle about them – he doesn't necessarily think he needs to at this point – and obviously Connie doesn't know, either. So it's all quite clandestine at the start, but I think they both enjoy the secrecy of this little romance.

What will Blake make of it all?

Well, that could well be a problem because of how close Blake and Sam have become. Let's just say there's a little bit of confusion, and that's one of the reasons they have to keep things secret to begin with!

Are you enjoying seeing Jacob play dad to Blake on screen?

Absolutely. As a father myself, I have a lot of source material to borrow from, so I'm channelling that energy. And Kai [Thorne, who plays Blake] is a wonderful actor, he's extremely malleable and open to learning. But there is a lot that happens that will test Jacob and Blake's relationship...

ollyoaks' resident doctor Misbah is used to asking people difficult questions but how will star Harvey fare under interrogation from our readers?

"Do you think you would make a good doctor in real life?"

Do you know what? I think I would! To be a doctor you have to be caring, but you also have to be quite firm and truthful with people, and I think I could do that. I'm not very good with people faffing! And I'm not squeamish about blood. A few years ago I did a play that was set in an operating theatre, and I was allowed to go and observe a proper, real-life operation – and it was amazing! It was a real privilege.

"Would you make a good doctor in real life?"

"In real life, are you as clumsy as Misbah?"

I am, actually. I sometimes just trip over my own feet – it's really quite embarrassing! I was in a pub once, with a pint in my hand, and did a somersault – because I tripped over – and landed on my bum. But I still managed to save the pint. There was not a drop of it on the floor!

"Aside from Misbah, what's been your favourite role to play?"

I did a film called Honour with Paddy Considine, about a year before I came into Hollyoaks. My character in that was a real baddy, and I loved her! I played a mother whose daughter was trying to run away with someone, so me and mv eldest son were trying to make sure it didn't happen. We hired a bounty hunter it was quite brutal! That's probably my favourite.

"What was it like working on the film Bend It Like Beckham? And did you get to meet the great man himself?"

- only the girls who were playing football did. But working on Bend It was one of the best things it was such a fun atmosphere

Bad mother: Harvey played a villain in the 2014 film Honour through. You know those last scenes at the end of the film, with the wedding? That took about a week to film, and it was just a week of partying! It was brilliant. I think we all knew that we had a lovely feel-good, gorgeous film.

"What are your best memories of your stint on Coronation Street [Harvey played Nina Mandal in 2008]?"

My best memory is a scene I did with Jimmi Harkishin, after Nina and Dev's little liaison. He was lying on the bed, and I was stood there in my dressing gown, it was sort of an homage to The Graduate. We had a piece of dialogue, and as it finished, somewhere in the building there was this loud bang of somebody shutting a door, and it was like the earth moved – the whole crew just fell about laughing! I've never forgotten that.

"What role do people most recognise you for when they see you in the street?"

It's usually Bend It Like Beckham, or Hollyoaks. It's lovely, actually, there's a whole range of people that do come up and speak to me. Some of them are young people, some of them are mums. They come up to me in Marks & Spencer, and go, "I love watching Hollyoaks!". Sometimes people might recognise me from other telly stuff—The Windsors or something like that. But mostly it's those two.

"Do you have any advice that you would give to aspiring young actors who are hoping to break into the television or film industries?"

"What do you think of Misbah's house?"

Perseverance, dedication, hard work – and if you really want it, go for it! You will also need to have a very thick skin, as there will always be people who will knock you back. But you've got to believe in yourself, and you've got to go for it. You can't just sit at home and think, 'Oh, I want to be an actor', and then just wait for somebody to come and knock on your door. You've got to work hard. You've got to get out there and learn your craft.

"What do you think of Misbah's house and her taste in furnishings?"

There's a lot of stuff in her house that I want for me! It's a huge house — sometimes we sit there and go, "How many bedrooms do you think this place has got?"! There's a lot I like about it. I love the green wallpaper and the bright colours. I love that huge kitchen — if it was my place, everyone would come round and eat together. It needs a big family in it.

"Who would be your dream actor to cast in Hollyoaks?

...asks reader Belinda Clutterthorp from Sussex

Well there are so many gorgeous men out there... But I think Hugh Jackman would be great in Hollyoaks – he'd have to play my boyfriend, obviously! It would be quite cool if he wasn't a doctor like Misbah, though, because often opposites attract. He could be an artist or a musician or something.

oronation Street star Alan Halsall (Tyrone) and four-year-old daughter Sienna Rae enjoyed the sunshine at a celebrity football match recently – with the doting daddy and his daughter looking relaxed and happy as they cheered on all the players.

Alan recently split from actress and ex-Corrie cast mate Lucy-Jo Hudson, but the pair have vowed to remain good friends for the sake of their little'un – and are looking to the future. Lucy-Jo has landed a role in Hollyoaks (Donna-Marie), while Alan has a new barnet since undergoing a hair transplant!

he two newest stars of Coronation Street enjoyed a girls' night out recently, as they joined their fellow female cast mates for a fun-filled evening on the town – and no boys were allowed! Dressed in their finery, new kids on the block Alexandra Mardell (Emma) – who rocked a stunning, sleek green jumpsuit – and Mollie Winward (Kayla), who donned a lacy bralet and trousers combo, looked at home among the girls as they partied the night away at swanky Hotel Gotham in Manchester. Taking to the rooftop terrace with glasses of bubbly in their hands, the Weatherfield beauties celebrated the third anniversary of the hotel's opening, as well as becoming the latest members of the Corrie family. Joining them were well known residents of the Street – Bhavna Limbachia (Rana), Faye Brookes (Kate) and Lucy Fallon

(Bethany) – as well as former cobbles star Tisha Merry (Steph). And they looked a world away from their downtrodden characters in their glamourous get-ups. What better way to welcome their new co-stars to life in Weatherfield?

SIBLING REVELRY

e know Karen Taylor's sister Kandice, aka Hannah Spearritt, is set to return to the Square - but how about actress Lorraine Stanley's real-life sister joining the soap as well? Perhaps she could play a long-lost twin, as looking at Lorraine's younger sibling Donna, she's most certainly the spitting image of our East End favourite! And while we're sounding the sibling reunion klaxon, how about Laurie Brett (Jane Beale) and screen brother John Partridge (Christan Clarke) make a Walford return? Judging by this recent picture of them, it looks as though they've missed each other just as much as we've missed them. Bring them back, we say!

e're getting quite the crush on Corrie newcomer Charlie De Melo (Imran). If you haven't seen his social media recently, please do so ASAP! Not only is it filled with adorable pics of the gorgeous puppies that he recently helped his family dog bring in to the world, but he's also been spotted donating blood with the help of co-star, best friend and sidekick Nicola Thorp (Nicola). CAN ROSS AND DEMELZA GET BACK ON TRACK?

AIDAN TURNER AND ELEANOR TOMLINSON THINK SO...

he last series of Poldark ended on a very uncertain note for Ross and Demelza: we left them lying in bed together, the weight of her recent infidelity with dashing Hugh Armitage hanging in the air between them, unspoken yet unavoidable. For many couples this would be the end of the road, but Ross and Demelza have survived worse - and as Inside TV catches up with stars Aidan Turner and Eleanor Tomlinson, they confirm their alter egos are better together than apart...

"Ross and Demelza have decided to stay together, reveals Eleanor. "So it's them taking their relationship on and recovering from the pain that they've caused each other, rebuilding their lives together. That's where we find them: trying to pick up the pieces and remain the unit that we know them as."

"It's a difficult time when we start the series," agrees Aidan. "Ross is convinced she's fallen in love with someone else, and certainly had more than just a fling with Hugh, and it's hard for him. But they don't talk about it - it takes a while for them to have that discussion.

"Their relationship feels really honest this year," continues Aidan. "It's grown up, and to see that feels just real and right. Relationships are complex, and there are no rules about how you tackle those things - it's just about honesty. Speaking plainly and listening is vital - Ross isn't very good at that at the best of times, so you see growth in his character this year in those kind of situations."

And it's not just in his personal life that Ross is learning to take more responsibility: having declined the invitation to stand for parliament in the previous series - leading to arch-rival George Warleggan being elected as MP for Truro -Ross has to wonder if he made the right decision when Prime Minister Pitt calls a general election. And as a corn riot reminds Ross of how cruelly the poor are treated by the ruling classes, he begins to realise that they need someone in power on their side...

"He needs to take the fight to Westminster - it makes sense," reasons Aidan. "Ross realises that's what he needs to do - to campaign to abolish the poor houses and child labour. I think he's good at being a leader and fighting for a just cause, and it's been a while since we've seen that from Ross."

And with Ross potentially away a lot more representing the constituency, we'll be seeing Demelza taking charge at Nampara in his absence...

"It's all very well for Ross - he swans off and leaves two kids, a farm, a dog, and a mine, and Demelza has to run the whole lot!" chuckles Eleanor. "So she's certainly not bored. But she just steps into his shoes and it's amazing how much respect she gets from the people because of that. She's always changing, she's always growing - it's what I like about her. She's trying to be a better person, trying to keep her relationship working and trying to run a business at the same time!"

THEIR RELATIONSHIP FEELS REALLY HONEST THIS YEAR" AIDAN

Look of love: Demelza and Ross decide to stay together

My favourite

I'm A Celebrity... Get Me Out Of Here! are the kind of shows that I can sit back and enjoy. And comedy-wise, I tend to revisit the classics like I'm Alan Partridge or Curb Your Enthusiasm these days.

My go-to film that is always such a treat to watch has to be Goodfellas. The way it's shot, the story, the music, it all just washes over you – it's pure cinematic joy!

If I could be in any other programme, I'd love to be in a really good cop show. It would be very nice to kick down a few doors and arrest some baddies!

Vic Reeves Big Night Out

EVEN IF IT WEREN'T FOR the presence of former Grey Sloan surgeon Ben Warren in the cast, it would still be easy to identify this firefighting drama as a Grey's Anatomy spin-off. Giveaways include the spirited female at the centre of a love triangle, the steamy hook-ups in the workplace that probably violate all sorts of health and safety regulations, and the cast of dizzyingly beautiful people. But it all slips down agreeably, and there have been some spectacular stunts: our favourite was when someone who ran a B&B with Roz from Frasier was trapped by an exploding wine rack.

uiz shows and Davina McCall: two things that Inside TV loves unreservedly. So when we were invited to Manchester to visit The £100K Drop studios and play the game with Davina, our response was an enthusiastic "yes". And that's how we found ourselves in front of a live audience, feeling very nervous indeed.

Even though we know it's not going out on telly and we're not going to take home any money, that slips right out of our head the second Davina asks the first question. We have £100,000 right in front of us and we want to win it.

We pick literature as our first subject and the question asks us which of these characters is an animal: General Woundwort, Betsey Trotwood, Mundungus Fletcher, or Boo Radley? Panic sets in – we know it's not Boo Radley, and we're pretty sure it's not Mundungus Fletcher... or is it? Davina gently reminds us that we have to start moving our money, so we do: splitting it between Betsey and Woundwort, then in a lastminute flail, we put a few wads on Mundungus for insurance.

It's time for the money to drop and we're in luck – the answer is General Woundwort (from Watership Down). We move our leftover cash back.

Driving is our subject for question two: "In which country do they not drive on the right? Egypt, the United brains are so fried from the stress that we can't even remember what side we drive on in this country. It's the left... right? We think the answer might be Egypt and put the majority of our money here, a bit less on Japan, and the smallest amount on Chile. Davina asks if we're ready to stop the clock and we nod, barely capable of talking. Egypt and the US are the first countries to drop, and we suddenly feel nauseous. Luckily, we still had a decent amount of money left on the correct answer: Japan.

On to our third and final question, and we pick "friends" as the category, hoping it's about the TV show.

Our options flash up as Rachel, Chandler, Monica and Joey – phew! The question is: which character had their name in the most episode titles? Our gut reaction is that it's either Joey or Rachel, but we're not sure. We put £17,500 on Rachel, £14,000 on Joey and £1000 on Monica. Time for the results. Monica and Joey drop – now we're questioning everything we thought we knew about them. Then Chandler goes – and Davina confirms that the correct answer is Rachel.

WE HAVE £100,000 IN FRONT OF US AND WE WANT TO WIN IT"

Our game ends here with £17,500 in our hands – which we have to give right back to the production team. For a moment we feel triumphant at having beaten the drop – but then remember that if we were playing for real, there would still be four questions left, and we've lost over 80 per cent of our money already. Maybe we'll stick to pub quizzes...

KIM BENSON – AKA VIPER – TELLS US ABOUT LIFE AS A WRESTLER...

im Benson has a nice, normal job working for her family's coach hire company – but when she's not in the office, chances are you'll find her clad in lycra, performing a running crossbody on an unsuspecting opponent. Kim is also Viper, one of the country's top female professional wrestlers, and in a one-off documentary this week, she reveals what it's like to live this unusual double life.

"I've been recognised at work once or twice," Kim tells Inside TV. "Sometimes people will come in to book a bus and they'll be like, 'Are you Viper?'. And there have been times when people have said, 'My son or daughter watches you and they love you."

The film follows Kim as she keeps up with both her day job and her hectic wrestling schedule, which doesn't just take her across the country but even sees her heading for Japan to compete in a double world title bout.

"I love the kind of runaway lifestyle," shares Kim. "I love the people who I meet. You form the deepest bonds with those you wrestle with. It's all about trust – you try to best each other in the ring, but you have to trust each other not to murder one another!

"I can't think of any other sport where you can go and literally beat each other up for a full 15 minutes and then come back and go, 'That was great – do you want to go and get a drink?'"

What do a former nun, the ex-girlfriend of Hollywood heart-throb Jason Statham and a five-times-married-nowsingleton have in common? No, it's not an awkward appearance on Britain's Got Talent - these ladies are all looking for love, and this special edition of the dating show could be sending a silver fox their way.

This one-off episode featuring over 50s celebrates 10 series of the hit show, whose unique form of matchmaking has led to seven weddings and five babies. And while babies might not be top of the list for these 'flirty 30' so-called Golden Girls, a date on the sunny isle of Fernando's certainly is.

As host Paddy McGuinness points out: "It's never too late to date..."

and they've put up with more flashing lights than an 80s school disco. Now the remaining eight competitors who have made it through TV's toughest obstacle course face each other in the grand final. No one ever said being a ninja was going to be easy, and tonight's nail-biting finale sees contestants have a crack at conquering 20-metre-high Mount Midoriyama before presenters Ben Shephard, Chris Kamara and Rochelle Humes declare the winner the Last Man Standing -

Playing the field

From this Friday we're going to see some of the most famous and highly-paid individuals in the world battling it out for supremacy on the football pitch, and that's going to dominate our screens for the next four weeks. So, as a palate-cleanser before we get into all that, tonight we're going to...watch some of the most famous and highly-paid individuals in the world battling it out for supremacy on the football pitch. Huh?

This is, of course, a different ball game because the whole point of Soccer Aid is to get as many big names together as possible to raise money for Unicef, and this year's England XI led by Robbie Williams includes Olly Murs, Mo Farah, Lee Mack and Mark Wright, while the World XI captained by Usain Bolt boasts Gordon Ramsay, Liar star loan Gruffudd, Line Of Duty's Martin Compston and former Strictly pro Brendan Cole among its ranks.

"Every player is a legend to me, but I think getting

Sir Mo Farah
– an actual knight of the realm
– to strap on his boots for England has got to win it for me this year," enthuses Robbie. "Usain – you can run, but you can't hide from the might of this England XI!"

"We have players
who've won the FIFA World Cup, the rugby World Cup, and the UEFA Champions
League," counters Usain. "I think Robbie should be pretty nervous right now!"

Growing pains

When the first series of Flowers aired back in 2016, we were caught slightly off-guard. Not only was it unusual to broadcast a comedy series across every evening in a single week, but the show itself was unlike anything we'd seen before: sweet and sad, but also dark and filled with suppressed emotion – and also very funny.

It's back for a very welcome second run tonight, set a few years down the line. Maurice is on medication for his depression and seems to be in better spirits, and his wife Deborah has written a book about him that's due to be published imminently.

Meanwhile, Shun is drinking, Donald has taken up plumbing, and Amy's in a band called The Pink Cuttlefish Orchestra. So, business as usual, then...

GRENFELL | BBC1 8.30PM

Last week ITV brought us a documentary focusing on the immediate 24-hour aftermath of the outbreak of the fire in Grenfell Tower; this film from the BBC casts a slightly wider net, as it was filmed over the course of a full year. The team began filming the day after the fire, documenting the effect on the residents of Grenfell and the surrounding community as they attempted to put their lives back together. One of the subjects of this film is Lorraine Beadle - one of the first people to move into Grenfell in 1975 - who will be saying a final goodbye to her flat on the fourth floor of the building.

INSIDE TO MONDAY 11 June

It's not unusual for a TV series to be "retooled" at the end of its first season, once the producers have a better idea of what is and isn't working. Kevin Can Wait has undergone a fairly drastic change, though:

KEVIN CAN WAIT | E4730PM Kevin's wife Donna has died off-screen, and Leah Remini is joining as a regular so the series can cash in on her existing chemistry with Kevin James from their King Of Queens days. An inspired move? Well, the show just got cancelled in the US, so...

New co-host Angellica Bell joins Alan as the dogumentary (yes, we went there), following the work of the RSPCA officers keeping our canine chums safe, returns for a new series tonight.

Angellica's first job on the show is meeting the delightful

Rolo (that's him up there in the picture with Angellica), who was once rescued from a puppy farm and now has a very important job as a therapy dog.

Tonight's episode features a range of stories that will tug hard on the heartstrings, such as two dogs rescued by inspector Anthony after their owner was spotted beating them on CCTV, and some much-needed help being given to a homeless man and his poorly labrador, who has a nasty wound that needs to be looked at immediately.

So, after numerous "don't do anything rash or unplanned because it's really dangerous here"-type warnings, Georgie did exactly that, and now she's only gone and gotten her team taken hostage, hasn't she? And just to make matters worse, it turns out that the crime boss they were so worried about is in fact an undercover Special Forces operative - and their intervention has just put a three-month operation in major jeopardy. Stuck in a cell and trying to plead their case to their captors, 2 Section can only wait for back-up - but it comes from a source that Georgie isn't quite expecting.

Family reunion

Once again, we find ourselves in a position where talking in any depth about this week's episode is going to involve spoilers, so forgive us for being more cryptic than we'd like.

Suffice to say, the events in Waltringham have put Joe in a compromised position, one that involves him seeking help from Laura. She's shocked to see her estranged husband, and even more astounded to see who's accompanying him.

Meanwhile, in probably the first known instance of wrongly-delivered post ever being a good thing, Mia's good deed in taking a letter to the right address leads to an astonishing discovery and an unexpected groundswell of support for her cause...

That's certainly a provocative title, but then we'd expect nothing less from the one and only Anne Robinson. Having fought to break through the glass ceiling as a woman in the media, Anne is disappointed that women are still having to fight for equality - and she's wondering if it's because women today are too fragile. In this programme she'll be putting her theory to the test in a variety of scenarios, meeting the grid girls at Brands Hatch whose line of work recently provoked controversy, as well as campaigners fighting to close the gender pay gap. Will any of them change Anne's mind?

Last week's episode ended with Henrik figuring out what links between the murders: it's Tommy! "Who's Tommy?" we imagine many of you asked, conveniently the same question that Saga asks tonight. But where she gets a concise summary from Lillian, we get a full quarter of the episode given over to a flashback explaining who Tommy is and why he's important.

But it's only when the team look into Tommv's friends and family that Henrik realises he's more connected to Tommy than he ever realised.

Also, the tension in Henrik and Saga's working relationship hasn't escaped Lillian, and she wants to know if they can still work together. Saga is keen. but Henrik? Not so much.

The run of Dale Winton's guide to his favourite holiday hotspot was interrupted on Channel 5 earlier this year but following the sad news of Dale's death in April, we're now getting a belated chance to see the rest of the series. In tonight's episode, Dale heads to Miami to visit Casa Casuarina, a fancy hotel that was once the home of Gianni Versace, and then takes in the sights of Muscle Beach. After that, it's onward to Little Havana, the centre of Miami's Cuban community, where Dale is given a crash-course in cigar-making and learns all about Cuban coffee.

IN and OUT

We spin soap's revolving door...

IN STUART MANNING (Russ Owen, Hollvoaks)

Nine years after leaving. Russ is heading home. But considering he fled the village with Myra's grandson Max - his child with Tina McOueen will he receive a warm welcome? "After a decade away from Hollyoaks, it felt like the right time to come back," says star Stuart. "Particularly when the show is on a high. It will be really interesting for me to explore how the character of Russ has evolved." Summer

CHARLES LAWSON (Jim McDonald, Corrie)

Jim is heading back to Weatherfield – and no doubt causing grief for ex-wife Liz and son Steve. But the return couldn't come at a better time for actor Charles – the farm shop he's been running for eight years with his partner, Debbie Stanley, has just gone bust, according to press reports.

MADDY HILL

(Ruby Sparks, Casualty)

We haven't got long left to wait for Maddy Hill to arrive at Holby City ED as paramedic Ruby. She arrives in three weeks' time – how will Ruby fare alongside Jan, lain and Sam? This month

MICHAEL PARR (Ross Barton, Emmerdale)

The bad boy is set to depart the village later this year – and while fans wondered if Michael was sick of the time-consuming process of putting on Ross' scar, the man himself has put the record straight. "I'm not leaving Emmerdale because of the make-up," he tweeted. "It's just time for a change." Autumn

CORNELIA FRANCES

Most of us will know her as Alf's fearsome sister, and ruthless lawyer, Morag Bellingham in Home and Away - but Cornelia, who passed away in Sydney last month after a long battle with cancer, earned her soap stripes long before that. The actress was actually born in Liverpool in 1941 and trained at the Guildhall School of Music and Drama in London. While she gained film and theatre roles in Britain, it was her move to Oz that gave her lasting success as she won roles that ironically would shoot her > continued to make to fame back in the UK.

She starrred as Sister Scott in The Young Doctors in the 1970s, and Barbara Hamilton in Sons And Daughters in the 80s. Then in 1988, she became part of the original cast of Home and Away, and apperances in the show right up until last year. Following her death, her co-stars have paid tribute to affectionately named 'Corney'. "She was an incredibly loved and valued member of our cast over many years," says Ray Meagher (Alf). "We had a moment of silence for her on set this morning and

"In a way she paved the way for women in Australian TV always playing such strong characters," added Lynne McGranger (Irene).

she'll be sadly missed by both cast and crew."

HITS & MISSES!

WHAT'S HIT THE BULLSEYE RECENTLY - AND WHAT'S FALLEN WIDE OF THE MARK?

How Sarah didn't keel over with a heart attack the moment Phelan pulled that trigger on the back of her head, we'll never know. At the very least, we assume fresh underwear had to be purchased.

Unlike most soap newborns, baby Zack has opted to confront his new life in Weatherfield with his eyes wide open. Good to be on your guard, lad.

This may be the first time we've seen someone throw a literal spanner in the works. Thank you, scheming Brenda, for bringing vital humour to this icky Bob and Laurel plot.

Jack P Shepherd did a superb job as David finally reported Josh to the police. It feels as though a huge weight has been lifted – both for him and for us.

Debbie's ability to somehow convince men to not report her for arranging an acid attack is really something. Even Ross – the actual victim – was like: "But you'll go to prison! Waa! Waa!". Well, exactly. Send her to jail, or she'll never learn her lesson!

We're not big fans of flashback episodes, as we think soaps are better when they're not too 'tricksy'. That said, Emmerdale's insight into Charity's past was beautifully done – thanks to top-class narration supplied by Emma Atkins, and the bright young talent of actress Mica Proctor, who played the Woolpack landlady's teenage self. Writing, casting and performance in perfect harmony!

Corrie seems to have employed three different versions of the same man. There's something for everyone here!

We're not certain, but we get the impression that Lysette Anthony is enjoying her time in Hollyoaks.

Milton Keynes to meet Bianca. His Army endurance training must have come in handy: facing a merciless enemy in hostile territory.

For viewers who may have blinked and missed it, Mick did switch off the toaster before jamming a knife in the slot to retrieve his toast. Even so, we would recommend never trying this at home!

We can't get over Alfie having the nerve to berate Kat over young Ernie needing skin grafts after a kettle accident. What about the time Alfie deliberately set fire to their home with Kat inside, leaving her with head-to-toe burns?
